THE COMMUNITY THAT CARES...

Review

OCTOBER, 2022
VOLUME 4 ISSUE 1

Picture It: One Vision, One North Ridgeville

Making the vision more of a reality with renderings of what the spaces could look like (when) the issues pass in November.

One Vision. One North Ridgeville. What could joint facilities look like? At the Virtual Town Hall two weeks ago, Mayor Corcoran and Superintendent Caserio shared the conceptual site plan and renderings of the school buildings and community spaces that could be built with passage of Issue 6 and Issue 28. These images are meant to be illustrative, as the detailed design would occur once the projects move forward and with opportunities for community input.

Successful passage of both issues 6 and 28 on November 8 will lead to the construction of:

Aerial view of high school and community center campus

Overall site plan of the proposed high school and community center

Site plan for Liberty Elementary School property

Rendering of new high school entrance

Rendering of community center entrance

On October 2 volunteers hosted FREE voter registration lemonade stands in neighborhoods throughout the community. "A lot of great looking lemonade stands today and several newly registered voters!! We hope you enjoyed your cookie from The Treat Shoppe & Bakery! Thanks to the many volunteers who made today's event possible!!"

1. A new high school, elementary school, dedicated space for Ranger High Tech Academy, a performing arts center and a transportation and maintenance facility to be funded through a bond issue.

2. A community center attached to the high school containing recreation facilities including a field house with indoor track, aquatic center, fitness center and a senior center to be funded through an income tax levy.

By passing these transformative issues, the North Ridgeville Community will save over $18 million compared to completing these projects separately.

Both Issues 6 and 28 must both pass to realize this plan.

For more information about these issues visit www.nrvision.com.

Bistro 83 bartender Jeff Gresko put his beard on the line to benefit North Ridgeville Schools. Per popular vote both Jeff's beard and North Ridgeville Schools were the winners!

Beard Cheer at Bistro83

Friday's are usually time for the weekly Beer Cheer at 6 p.m. at Bistro 83. Last Friday was different. It was a Beard Cheer as award-winning bartender Jeff Gresko put his beard on the line in a benefit for North Ridgeville Schools. Would he or wouldn't he?

When the votes came in, he wouldn't! He kept the beard. North Ridgeville Schools were the big winner, however, as they donated the winnings from this fun event. Mayor Kevin Corcoran and Supt. Roxann Ramsey-Corserio accepted on behalf of the campaign. Thank you to all!

Michelle Moore: Rising Researcher in the University Partnership

There wasn't a single moment in her life that made Michelle Moore decide to give college another try. Instead, she calls the decision a slow burn. In 2011 Moore was among 42 students to graduate from a high school in western Ohio. The following fall she attended a large university in Michigan and the transition didn't go well.

"It was such a big change, and I didn't feel like I was very connected to the college," Moore said. "That and then also financial reasons."

Moore dropped out, moved to Elyria and started working at a local jewelry store. Her mom worked there too, and Moore enjoyed it. She liked getting a glimpse into her customers' lives and was earning a decent living. Moore worked there for nearly a decade, all the while knowing she would never feel settled in a retail career.

"I kept hearing this voice in the back of my head telling me, 'What are you doing? You're not meant for this,'" Moore said. "I always said I'd go back to college one day, but as the years go by though, you feel like you're very out of that world."

Moore said she became fed up with that little voice and a Lorain County Community College alumnus — Moore's husband — helped pull her back into the college world. And Moore, who's now earning her Bachelor of Arts in psychology through LCCC's University Partnership, has thrived ever since.

"My experience at LCCC has been nothing but great," Moore said. "The difference is obviously a smaller school, and way more affordable."

On average, University Partnership students save 70% of the four-year university's tuition. Moore said the financial break allowed her to focus not only on her studies, but on activities outside the classroom. Like serving as president of a club she, at first, said she'd never join. Moore recalls LCCC psychology professor, Jim Jordan, being relentless in his promotion of Psi Beta, a national honor society for students enrolled in two-year colleges who plan to major in psychology. But Moore didn't consider herself a club joiner.

"I just thought, I'm going to get my degree and I'm going to get out of here," Moore said. "But professor Jordan kept telling me it would help my career later because I'd get research experience and be able to give back to the community."

Moore eventually caved, joining Psi Beta, and said the opportunities seemed endless. The chapter launched community-focused programs like "Journey to the Brain and Beyond," where members taught children about the brain through games and activities. They donated their time at the Second Harvest Food Bank and LCCC's Commodore Cupboard. And they co-hosted a blanket drive to donate to the Blessing House, a local crisis center that provides housing and resources for children in need.

"At Psi Beta we like to focus on giving back to the community because the community has always supported LCCC," said Jordan. "The only problem our members are experiencing with giving back to the community is that they want to do much, which is a good problem to have."

For the sixth consecutive year the LCCC chapter received the Chapter Excellence Award, given to chapters across the country that meet or exceed the standards of excellence within each component of Psi Beta's mission — community service, leadership, scholarship and research.

Moore herself was a standout on the research side of Psi Beta, being one of just six in the nation to win the Macmillan Learning Emerging Researcher Award. She gained much of the research experience that helped her win by participating in the Psi Beta National Research Project on College Connectedness. Moore served as a research lead on the team and, along with the rest of the chapter, presented to the American Psychological Association.

"That's unbelievable," Moore said. "To have those opportunities and to go to such a big conference to present. It was amazing."

Moore said Jordan was right when he called Psi Beta a career builder. She's now applying to graduate schools, with hopes of getting into either Cleveland State University's Adult Development and Aging Ph.D. program, one that typically requires a Master's degree as a prerequisite. It's a bold move but Moore thinks she has a chance, thanks in part to her role in Psi Beta.

"When Michelle was recognized as an emerging researcher, she distinguished herself among thousands of two-year college students across the country," Jordan said. "Obtaining advanced degrees in psychology demands exceptional research skills and Michelle has already demonstrated the ability to conduct research at a graduate level."

Moore, who expects to graduate in December 2022, is now serving as president of LCCC's chapter for current academic year. And as she continues to bolster her resume and her confidence, she is thankful that once nagging voice that eventually led her to LCCC.

"Coming to LCCC was the best decision I've ever made in my college career, hands down," she said.

LCCC Issue 10

For the past 25 years we have experienced first hand the abilities and expertise of Lorain County Community College graduates. These students, products of The University Partnership Program, are now professionally engaged with helping people here in Lorain County in a variety of healthcare, information technology, engineering, law enforcement, paramedic, firefighter and skilled trade positions.

Issue 10 is ESSENTIAL in helping LCCC students afford college costs as they prepare for their futures. Without Issue 10 millions of dollars will be cut resulting in a reduction of degree programs, job training and support services for our community.

The renewal of this levy, with NO TAX INCREASE, is imperative to insure that our student-to-professional pipeline continues.

Please join us in voting for Issue 10. This VITAL program deserves our YES votes!

- Dr. And Mrs. Alexander Zollli, Elyria

Please Support LCCC

One of the best investments we can make in the safety of our community is to continue to support LCCC and its University Partnership program by voting for Issue 10. It is a renewal levy and does not increase your taxes. Issue 10 will help keep education for our residents affordable so more will participate. As a local judge, I see how LCCC's programs bolster safety in our community as LCCC is the number one training location for first responders - police, firefighters, paramedics, nurses, etc. LCCC and the University Partnership provide our residents with the skills for higher paying jobs and careers with more than 90% of our LCCC grads working and living here in Northeast Ohio.

Safety and a stronger economy go hand in hand. We cannot take these things for granted. Please join me and encourage your family and friends to vote for Issue 10.

At one time there were numerous cheese factories here in town. This particular one on Avon Belden is currently being used for another business. As recent as the early 1980s the round, brick storage tower used to store the cheese was still visible from the exterior. (Not shown in these more recent photos). Courtesy of the North Ridgeville Historical Society.

This brick building on Avon-Belden Road, just north of Butternut Ridge, was built in 1871 as a cheese factory, replacing the original structure which was built in 1869 and destroyed by fire. Francis Eldred, a son of Ridgeville pioneer and War of 1812 veteran Moses Eldred (1774-1857), along with Francis' son William H. Eldred (1841-1906), operated the Excelsior Cheese Factory here, along with men named Adams and Jackson. Using the milk from Ridgeville farmers' dairy cows, they produced "Cheshire Cheese" - - all of which was shipped directly to England. Through the years the building has been used by various businesses, including Arrow Fence and currently TSP Automotive.

In 1981 the North Ridgeville Fire Department celebrated their 50th anniversary. Here's the departmental photo from that year.

Breast Cancer Awareness Month

Taking time for your health

Regular breast exams can spot problems early and save your life. Making time for breast screenings is an important part of good health. It's about putting yourself first, so you can be there for the ones you love. Preventive breast exams should be a part of every woman's wellness plan — even if you don't have a family history of breast cancer.¹ Regular checks can help find breast cancer early, when it is easier to treat.²

Empower yourself: Know the signs and symptoms. A lump, swelling, pain, discharge, or skin changes are warning signs that should be checked by a doctor.

Talk with your doctor. Ask when to start having mammograms and how often you should have them based on your health history.³

North Ridgeville Schools Induct Two to Alumni Hall of Fame

The North Ridgeville Academic Recognition Committee inducted two distinguished graduates into the North Ridgeville Alumni Hall of Fame on Sept. 26.

Joining previous honorees for the prestigious award are 1975 graduate Kathy Bly and class of 2004 graduate Brittany Marino.

Kathy Bly

Brittany Marino

Kathy Bly

During her time at North Ridgeville High School, Ms. Bly was an active member of both the marching and concert band as well as being a member of the National Honor Society. Since graduation, Kathy has remained involved with the schools as an active volunteer, as a PTO board member and served as the president of the Band Boosters while her own children attended the district. In addition to her work with the schools, Ms. Bly can be found volunteering time with the North Ridgeville Historical Society where she is the recording secretary and curator of the Historical Society's Museum.

Brittany Marino

Brittany Marino has found herself giving back to the community from which she graduated, as a seventh grade language arts teacher at the North Ridgeville Academic Center. Ms. Marino returned to the North Ridgeville City Schools as a teacher in 2008 and has served in a variety of additional capacities including that of Drama Club Advisor, Washington DC Coordinator and department chair of the Language Arts Department. Additionally, Brittany is a Board Member for the Ohio Middle Level Education Association and was awarded a Distinguished OMLA Award in 2016. She prides herself on being a "Ranger for Life" and inspires those around her to be a proud member of the Ranger Community.

The North Ridgeville Alumni Hall of Fame induction ceremony was held during the annual student Academic Recognition Ceremony.

Self-portrait printmaking in @ArtRhta. It was fun watching their primary color choices transform into secondary colors. @NRCSstem

Rangers Visit

Collaboration between @NRHSRangers and @NRAC3_8 is one of the benefits of having a campus. Ms Villaire's class visited with Mrs Corcoran's students to share the cell books they created for the 5th graders.

NR Rotary Students of the Month

Two @NRHSRangers were recognized as NR Rotary Students of the Month today. Congratulations to Ruby and Allison!
